Bathroom Safety Tips

Make sure baths and showers have step-free access. Step-in tubs have doors for easy entrance and exit. To make showers accessible, you can add a bath bench, a hand-held showerhead, and a convenient shelf to reach wash products. For those in wheelchairs, a large zero-entry shower with a bench is often the best option.

To prevent slipping, consider adding non-skid decals to slippery areas in the bathroom. When selecting flooring, it's recommended to choose slip-resistant materials such as wood, textured vinyl, or tile with ample grout to enhance traction.

To make going to the toilet easier for those with joint replacements or arthritis flare-ups, install a comfort-height toilet or add a toilet seat riser to an existing toilet. This modification provides extra height and may aid in transferring to and from a wheelchair.
